

Entity Structure, Governance & Succession Planning

OVERVIEW

The first decision a business must make is the choice of legal entity. We help determine whether a C-corporation, S-corporation, limited liability company or limited partnership is the right choice based on business model, tax considerations, financing plans and anticipated exit strategy.

In addition to creating the entity and qualifying to do business where required, our attorneys work with founders and management to create documentation for structure, governance and ownership. For a corporation, this includes certificate of incorporation, by-laws and stockholder agreements. For a limited liability company or limited partnership, it includes the LLC/operating agreement or limited partnership agreement, as well as ancillary agreements if manager or general partner is an entity. This documentation will address critical matters such as:

- Voting rights
- Allocation and distribution of income and sale proceeds
- Rights of first refusal and co-sale rights on proposed ownership transfers
- Rights to participate in additional equity offerings
- Cross-purchase on death or disability and associated insurance trust
- Transfers of ownership to family members or employees

Ongoing representation focuses on advising the board of directors and management on matters of governance, authorization, conflicts of interest and the proper exercise of their fiduciary obligations.
